To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Adam Brunette who worked with me at Blox Digital as a Junior Developer. During their time with us, Adam consistently demonstrated a strong work ethic, eagerness to learn, and a solid foundation in software development principles.

He contributed meaningfully to several data and archive processing projects, where he showed not only technical competence but also a strong ability to collaborate within a team environment.

What sets Adam apart is his initiative and growth mindset. He actively sought feedback, regularly participated in code reviews, and showed noticeable improvement over a short period of time. This drive and resilience will undoubtedly serve him well in any development team.

I am confident that Adam will be a valuable asset to any organization looking for a motivated and capable junior developer. I highly recommend him for any opportunity and am happy to speak further about his qualifications if needed.

Sincerely,

Lino J Delgado
